

Late Night Cinema at the OFF Festival

Join us every night after the last concert at the Forest Stage, at around 2:40 am, for a movie screening to cool off after the excitement of the day. Together with the Legal Culture Foundation, we'll be holding a Late Night Cinema at the Food Court. Here's a schedule of this year's screenings:

Friday

Indie Game: The Movie

A film that follows the work and life of video game developers. Independent from large gaming companies and dependent on no one but themselves, the developers talk about the motivation behind their work and how they implement their ideas in the world of indie gaming. The movie also attempts to find an answer to the question of the role of the author in the world of video games.

Genre: Documentary

Country: Canada

Directors: Lisanne Pajot, James Swirsky

Saturday

Unmade Beds

The story of two inhabitants of a London squat. Each of them is a unique, sensitive soul; both of them struggle to cope with the challenges in their lives, and both find their own original answers to their problems. The characters: young and unapologetic. The camera: hand-held. The music: good and alternative. The mood: warm with a hint of melancholy.

Genre: Drama, comedy

Country: United Kingdom

Director: Alexis Dos Santos

Sunday

John Dies at the End

A new drug known as "soy sauce" hits the streets. Dealers push it as a substance that lets you travel through time and space. As interest grows, its side effects start to spiral out of control: anyone who uses the mysterious drug even once ceases to be human...

Genre: Fantasy, horror, comedy

Country: USA

Director: Don Coscarelli
